Outline Description	Chapel dedicated to the Assumption of Mary
Property Description	The present chapel, dedicated to the Assumption of the St Mary, was built in the late 17th century, replacing two smaller chapels dedicated to St Rocco and St Sebastian respectively, which were deconsecrated in 1676. The chapel of the Assumption was enlarged in 1961, and two sacristies and a hall were also added. The chapel is reached through a balustraded parvise. The facade is plain, and consists of a square headed doorway, above which a balustrade balcony is supported on four Doric columns. Centrally placed on the balcony is a square headed door, headed by a pediment. The facade is framed by a pilaster on both sides and a running cornice. Three bell-cots are centrally placed at roof level, having the central one topped with a cross, while those at the side are topped by a decorative motive which is repeated on the side pilasters. Two windows flank the main doorway at eye level.
